1	Q. Would you agree that in general most
2	historians recognized in the field as such have Ph.D.s?
3	A. Within the field of firearms study
4	Q. No, within the
5	A not necessarily.
6	Q field of history?
7	A. Yes, but I don't believe it's the only thing
8	that can allow you to have to be considered a
9	historian.
10	Q. Okay. Did you write a dissertation as part of
11	your master's program?
12	A. I did not. The way that University of
13	Delaware operated was they preferred research and
14	writing seminars both years. And so instead we were
15	able to focus on different topics. I studied armed
16	feminism and liberal activism in the 1960s and '70s
17	that involved the use of firearms.
18	Q. So you didn't have to defend a dissertation as
19	part of that process?
20	A. No.
21	Q. Have you authored scholarly articles in
22	peer-reviewed history journals?
23	A. I have written a few articles. I've
24	participated as well in panels that have been
25	published. One was by the Journal of Technology and

- Q. Could you please describe the methodology that you used in preparing this declaration?
  - A. How exactly do you mean?
- Q. Whatever sources and methods and principles that you applied in order to reach the conclusions that you arrived at?
- A. So I took two really specific avenues on that, so I looked at kind of the evolution of the technology was one component of that. And then since it was asked about the laws, I looked into the laws side of it rather than adding, you know, ancillary subject matter on it with cultural context.

And then I broke it down generally by section based on the Bruen decision of the Founding Era, second Founding Era. So I tried to take that component, and then I tried to separate it into evolution, just what was there, what wasn't there, and then any laws that I found in my research that may or may not have had anything to do with that particular technology.

- Q. Okay. Would you agree that proper historical work involves surveying the full array of available sources and evaluating the reliability of those sources?
  - A. I would.

- Q. Did you do this in preparing your declaration?
- A. I read a lot of different research on it, on the various subject matters. But then at the same time I had experience already doing that when I built the Cody Museum and worked in other collections.
  - Q. Did you --
- A. So it wasn't just for this deposition, but I've worked on a lot of different things.
- Q. Excuse me. Did you survey the full array of available sources?
- A. I'm not sure how would categorize the full array.
  - Q. Well, did you exhaust your efforts to find sources to potentially provide illuminating and relevant information about the subject matter?
  - A. Yes. In my research and the amount of time I had, I went to every -- well, and based on my past experience with it, yes, I did everything I could to find what I could; although, timeframes are always tight on these things. But I did look at an array of sources.
- Q. Did time constraints prevent you from consulting potentially relevant sources that you might otherwise have probed?
  - A. There can always be more information for you

1	Q. And Duncan is cited in footnote 34?
2	A. Yes.
3	Q. Okay. And that's the district court's
4	decision in Duncan from 2019?
5	A. I believe so, yes.
6	Q. Any other sources that you relied on for that
7	proposition?
8	A. I did see it in I believe I saw it also in
9	Johnson, et al., in their section on powder
10	regulations. I believe it's in there as well.
11	Q. And Johnson, et al., you're referring to the
12	citation in footnote 31, which is a law school
13	casebook?
14	A. Correct.
15	Q. Okay. Well, let's take Duncan first. Do
16	historians typically rely on contemporary judicial
17	opinions as sources for understanding historical
18	events?
19	A. I think that's up to the person. A lot of
20	times with that it's coming from experts. So if it was
21	a place where I could find something that was a
22	succinct analysis of it and then I saw the laws on the
23	Duke site, then, yes, I would use it.
24	Q. Okay. It's a secondary source, you agree?
25	A. Correct.

Ashley Hlebinsky

	Page 130
1	Q. Probably several steps removed from the
2	original source, whatever it's relying on, you would
3	agree?
4	A. Correct.
5	Q. In this case the Duncan decision was reversed
6	by the Court of Appeals. Were you aware of that when
7	you cited it?
8	A. I wasn't aware of all of the different
9	components of it. I know it went through, and then I
10	know it went up, and now it's back down for evaluation.
11	Q. Right. So the fact that that decision was
12	actually vacated or reversed, does that cause you any
13	concern with relying on this as an assertion?
14	A. Not necessarily.
15	Q. Why not?
16	A. Because just because the overarching argument
17	created by one side may have had may have been
18	reversed for specific reasons, it doesn't mean that's
19	one of them.
20	Q. Let's go to paragraph 26. This is on the next
21	page, page 19. And you write, "In summary, at the time
22	of the Founding Era, laws about firearms restriction
23	were regularly directed towards groups of people rather than the firearms themselves."

Do you see that?
